

Bilag 2. Standard industrial groupings for publishing purposes

Industries organized into four groupings For the purpose of facilitating the users' possibilities of comparing industrial information obtained from the various published statistics as easily as possible, Statistics Denmark has organized the total number of registered industries (726) into four standard groupings.

Groupings used in published statistics The four standard groupings comprise 10, 19, 36 and 127 groups, respectively. These groups form the basis of using DB07 in statistics published by Statistics Denmark.

127-grouping is the most detailed The level of detail differs among the four standard groupings. The 127-grouping is the most detailed, whereas the 10-grouping is the least detailed. The 10-grouping is indicated by a one-digit code and a general text, the 19-grouping is indicated by a letter and a general text, the 36-grouping is indicated by one or two letters and a general text and the 127-grouping is indicated by a 5-digit code and a general text, see the table below.

Links to DB07 The code structure in the grouping is linked to the codes in DB07 and indicates where you are in DB07. The 6-digit DBO7 codes, which are contained in the 127-grouping, are indicated below the 5-digit 127-grouping.

① 10-grouping. An aggregation of all 726 industries to 10 groups.

② 19-grouping. An aggregation of all 726 industries to 19 groups.

③ 36-grouping. An aggregation of all 726 industries to 36 groups.

④ 127-grouping. An aggregation of all 726 industries to 127 groups

Final digit denotes information If the final digit of the codes is 0 the initial digits of the codes are thus identical with the initial digits in the detailed DB07 industries which are included in the standard group. When the final digit of the code is 9 it means that it does not contain consecutive main divisions.
